

Researching programs and schools

There are thousands of majors to choose from in public and private universities in France! Majors in France tend to be very specific, with undergraduate study lasting on average three years. CampusFrance, the French government's educational advising branch, is responsible for assisting international students to apply for study in France. You can find a list of all of the possible majors on their website: <http://www.campusfrance.org/es/pagina/encontrar-una-formacion>

General Admissions Requirements

As the French government's educational advising body, it is necessary for you to work with CampusFrance to prepare your admissions file for study in France. This process is done electronically, in a system called CEF. Through the online system, CampusFrance will send you information, you will upload admissions documents, and this information will be able to be accessed by the 231 universities registered with the CEF.
